November 2011—Issue 1

2012 State Plan Survey

The North Carolina State Historic Preservation Office is updating the state's comprehensive historic preservation plan, "Legacy", which serves as a statement of public policy for historic preservation. The plan will assess the current status of historic resources and preservation efforts in North Carolina, examine needs and issues affecting preservation, and articulate goals and objectives, to serve as a general guide for the continued preservation of the state's historic resources over the next five years.

To generate broadly-based participation in developing the plan, we are distributing a questionnaire to the general public and a range of public officials, local governments, and preservation professionals. If you could please forward to colleagues of your own to help us gather a larger pool of respondents, we would be quite appreciative. The survey will close January 15th, 2012. Thank you for taking the time to complete this important survey, as well as forwarding along to interested participants. The survey is accessible selecting the link below or via our website and our blog.
